NEW BEGINNINGS

by Jenesis Peaks

It was Jenesis Peaks, who made the discovery that started it all. It was 3:00 a.m. An uncton in Jenesis' spirt awaken her. She rolled over and saw that Jack, her husband, was sound asleep. Quickly, but quietly to her feet, she stood, grabbed her robe from the bottom corner of the bed and made her way swiftly down the hallway. Stopping at Samuel's door, she knocked softly and called out his name, "Samuel, Samuel, Samuel, are you dressed?" After receiving no answer and fear of Jack rolling over and finding her not there, she hurriedly opened the door. She was shocked to find Samuel's bed was neatly made. There was no hint that he'd been there since he left the dinner table earlier. It was one of numerous times that would lead the mother of Samuel Wade to conclude that her son had something to hide, which was indeed the case.
